Job title: Medicines Information Pharmacist, John Radcliffe Hospital

Olivia is currently working as a part-time Medicines Information Pharmacist at the Medicines Information Department in the John Radcliffe Hospital. She completed her Foundation Training year in the hospital and GP sectors with Oxford University Hospitals.

For the rest of Olivia's time, she is reading for MSc Genomic Medicine at Oxford University, run by the Wellcome Centre for Human Genetics and am matriculated into Oxford's oldest college, Merton. Olivia has a particular interest in pharmacogenomics and personalised medicine and is lucky enough to be supported in completing her studies with a scholarship from the Centre for Personalised Medicine .

Olivia's interest in the wider world of pharmacy started during her role as a National Representative for the British Pharmaceutical Students Association. From this Olivia went on to complete two executive mandates as Western Area Coordinator and Graduate Officer.
